

"English Language" website.

Posted by Peter on 29 April 2010

From time to time, I like to tell you about other English Language sites which I have found. The English language website contains a lot of material about English grammar and pronunciation, as well as material for English teachers and even some "typically English" recipes.

Let me tell you a secret - the most popular dish in England is chicken tikka masala! There is a recipe for chicken tikka masala here, though most English people just buy a jar of sauce from the supermarket and pour it over some cooked chicken!

But, sorry, we were talking about learning English, not about how to make an English version of a classic Indian dish. I think that you will find that the English language website is worth bookmarking, as somewhere to go when you need help on grammar, or to find links to other resources.

This is the text of the podcast at <http://www.listen-to-english.com/index.php?id=527>,