

It's English Time, by Diana Tower

Posted by Peter on 21 March 2011

Watch the first video from Diana Tower's new 20 video English course "Its English Time"...

English teacher Diana Tower has e-mailed to tell us about her latest venture, an English course called "It's English Time". It is based on videos about the life of Jerry, a 40 year-old bachelor whose life - in lots of little ways - is a bit harder than it ought to be. There are 20 units in the course. Each unit uses one of the videos to help students to learn new vocabulary, expressions, phrasal verbs and much more in 8 simple steps. Students will challenge their listening skills by watching the videos (with and without subtitles) and studying additional audio recorded by Diana herself. She has a really nice North American accent, so those of you who have told me that you want to know more about American English should listen to some of her mp3s.

You can find out more about the course by going to Diana's website. The course costs 197EUR or 275USD, but if you are quick you can get it at a reduced price of 137EUR until 1 April 2011.

Diana has kindly agreed to put one of the videos on Listen to English - you can see it at the top of this posting. Also, you can download an introduction to the course here, and a pdf with exercises for the first unit here. And, even better, there are two audio files from Diana here and here.

I am visiting Northern Ireland later in the week; there will be a new podcast when I get back.

This is the text of the podcast at <http://www.listen-to-english.com/index.php?id=556>.